1 What can you measure about this bowl?

Direct evidence: Name a measurable attribute of a familiar object. The adult records the child's own attribute; a colour or an object name does not satisfy the criterion.

Administer separately

1. Give the child a real bowl, or show the picture.
2. Ask: "What could we measure about this bowl?"
3. If the child says its colour, ask once: "Is there another thing we could find out?"
4. Write down what the child says.

Accept: Names something that can be measured about the bowl, such as how much it holds, how heavy it is or how wide it is. Another fair thing about its size is fine too. Naming its colour or what it is called is Not yet.

Record: The child said
